

1. Define sustainable development and elaborate on its key principles. How can businesses contribute to sustainable practices?
2. Examine the causes and consequences of climate change, emphasizing its impact on biodiversity. Propose measures for both mitigating and adapting to climate change.
3. Evaluate the significance of water conservation in both urban and rural environments. Identify challenges and recommend sustainable water management strategies.
4. Discuss the concept of ecological footprint, emphasizing its relevance to individual and community actions. How can people minimize their ecological footprint?
5. Investigate the potential of renewable energy sources in reducing the dependence on fossil fuels. Analyze the advantages and obstacles associated with the widespread adoption of renewable energy.